

Management Consulting Business Analysts and Senior Business Analysts

Momentum Partners is currently seeking new recruits to join us as Business Analysts and Senior Business Analysts. We are seeking outstanding individuals Australia-wide with a proven history of academic excellence and leadership to join our growing team. Ideally, applicants will have up to four years' experience in the workforce and have graduated with top results in commerce, engineering, law and/or science.

Business analysts take responsibility for a discrete part of the problem-solving process on each client project that we undertake. They play an integral role in gathering data, building analytical models, and subsequently developing client presentations in order to support the team's overall work plan and recommendation. Business Analysts are also expected to present their findings to internal case teams and clients.

Senior Business Analysts often undertake similar work to our Business Analysts, but their extra experience and maturity allows them to be involved in broader issues and more senior client interactions. We often think of our Senior Business Analysts as “analytical pinch-hitters”, that we turn to when there's a really tough piece of analysis that absolutely has to get done in crunch situations.

We seek to provide our Business Analysts and Senior Business Analysts with the opportunity to work across a broad range of industries and business problems. Specific responsibilities can vary widely depending on the project, and it is through this diversity of work and problem-solving that we believe you will build the best practical business experience possible at an early stage in your career.

We are committed to investing heavily in your professional development and training. You will receive training both on-the-job and offsite, in analysis, strategic thinking, client management and team-building.
